

Dutch composite cable tray manufacturer

AI Overview

Ebo Systems and Gouda Holland are leading Dutch manufacturers of composite (GRP) cable trays. Ebo Systems, based in the Netherlands, specializes in glass fiber reinforced polyester (GRP) cable trays and is recognized for its high-quality, durable products suitable for corrosive environments, extreme temperatures, and heavy loads. The company uses two main manufacturing techniques: continuous pultrusion and hot pressing, allowing for versatile and robust cable tray solutions. Since 2010, Ebo Systems has been part of the Niedax Group, a global leader in cable management systems, providing technical advice, planning, and installation services worldwide. Gouda Holland B.V., also part of the Niedax Group since 2013, produces a wide range of cable ducts and trays, including light, medium, and heavy-duty versions. Their GRP products are halogen-free, UV-resistant, and corrosion-resistant, making them suitable for industrial, marine, and machine-building applications. Gouda Holland emphasizes modularity and ease of installation, with spans ranging from 3 to 6 meters and integrated coupling connections for sturdy construction.

Key Advantages of Dutch GRP Cable Trays

- High durability in harsh environments
- Lightweight and easy to handle
- Halogen-free and corrosion-resistant
- Versatile manufacturing techniques (pultrusion and press molding)
- Global support and technical consulting through the Niedax Group network

Both Ebo Systems and Gouda Holland are suitable partners for projects requiring reliable, long-lasting composite cable management solutions in industrial, energy, transportation, and marine sectors.
