AI Overview

Leading Egyptian companies providing complete low voltage (LV) electrical equipment include 2M Electric, El Fares Group, Al Giza (AGEC), TEPCO Group, and ELC Energy. Key Companies and Offerings 2M Electric Group specializes in manufacturing medium and low voltage equipment, including kiosks, compact substations, SF6 & air RMUs, switchgears, and transformers. Their products comply with national and international standards, serving major industrial and infrastructure projects in Egypt. El Fares Group (FGC) is recognized as the best LV switchgear manufacturer in Egypt, offering type-tested solutions such as Main Distribution Boards (MDBs), Motor Control Centers (MCCs), and smart PLC automation systems. They provide customized LV panels, energy-efficient solutions, and authorized assembly of Siemens and Himel components, ensuring compliance with IEC standards. Al Giza for Electrical Industries (AGEC) provides predictive, preventive, and corrective maintenance for LV and MV panels, breakers, and transformers. They manufacture main distribution boards up to 6300A, transformer kiosks, and ring main units using ELTOM load break switches for 12kV and 24kV systems. TEPCO Group designs, builds, and operates low and medium voltage systems, energy efficiency solutions, and control systems. They have multiple subsidiaries specializing in sheet-metal forming, epoxy-resin post insulators, and bushings, supporting Egypt's energy and power distribution ecosystem. ELC Energy focuses on low and medium voltage power transmission products, including RMUs, LBS, switchgear systems, custom LV panels, and prefabricated substations. They provide full project support from design to commissioning, with in-house QA/QC and type-testing in compliance with IEC standards.
