

Price of cable tray packaging for computer room

AI Overview

Cable tray prices for computer rooms typically range from $0.50 per piece for small fiber optic trays to $1.20 per meter for standard perforated galvanized steel trays, depending on material, type, and order volume.

Pricing Overview

Standard Perforated Galvanized Steel Trays: Suitable for general indoor computer room applications, these trays cost around $1.20 per meter for bulk orders of 1000 meters or more, offering cost-effectiveness and basic corrosion protection (Hongfeng Electric Group).

Small Fiber Optic or Splice Trays: For data center or telecommunications applications, low-cost splice trays are available at approximately $0.50 per piece, ideal for high-volume fiber management (Ceili Telecom).

4-Inch Cable Trays: Smaller trays for targeted routing in server rooms are priced around ₹100 per piece in some markets, suitable for limited installations.

Stainless Steel Trays: For environments requiring high corrosion resistance, such as areas with humidity or chemical exposure, stainless steel trays are more expensive but offer long-term durability and reduced maintenance costs.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Galvanized steel is cost-effective, aluminum is lightweight, and stainless steel provides superior corrosion resistance.

Tray Type: Ladder trays allow better airflow for heat dissipation, solid-bottom trays offer maximum protection, and perforated trays balance ventilation and protection.

Order Volume: Bulk purchases often reduce the per-meter cost but may require meeting minimum order quantities (MOQs).

Accessories and Integration: Costs may increase if bends, tees, supports, or color-coated options are required for aesthetic or functional integration.

Supplier Options

Hongfeng Electric Group: Competitive pricing for bulk perforated trays.

Baozun Industry: Fire-resistant metal trunking in smaller quantities, suitable for critical routing.
